A Durban dream come true

REACH for a Dream and Varsity College made a young man's dreams come true recently with a trip to Durban.

Eighteen-year-old Samuel Ramasukgwane, who has a blood disorder, dreamt of going to Durban so he could see the seaside. A dream trip was organised by Varsity College Sandton, in collaboration with a local Varsity College campus, and he was driven down to Durban in style by Reach for a Dream's consultant Angie Pape in the Reach for a Dream bus.

This trip was a fully paid for holiday for Samuel. He enjoyed a walk on the beach and a dip in the ocean, an outing to uShaka Marine World, which included a dolphin and seal show, rock reef feeding, shark feeding, a rickshaw ride, a harbour boat tour and a ride in the sky car at Moses Mabhida Stadium. The money was raised by Sandton Varsity College's student liaison body through an annually held event called the Voscars. Through securing various sponsorships for this event the students were able to raise R17 000 to go towards making the Durban dream trip come true.
